

The Intelligencer.

Office 25 &amp; 27 Fourth St.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

FRIDAY, APRIL 26, 1878.

The Democratic Committee of Richmond, Va., have adopted a resolution excluding the blacks from voting at the primary elections of their party.

Russian papers compute the entire cost incurred by the war on the part of Russia at 850,000,000 roubles, or $637,000,000. Russia's indifference to expense is characteristic of a country that has no money to speak of and not very good credit.

Chester has been found highly curative in even advanced stages of consumption. M. M. Bouchard and Gilbert report having cured 27 per cent, and improved 31 per cent, of their phthisical patients by using absolutely pure creosote combined with gentian, alcohol and Malaga wine.

They have invented many instruments to test the purity of milk, but it is said that our grandmothers used a knitting needle to ascertain if water had been added, with unfailing accuracy. If the milk be pure the knitting needle, after being plunged perpendicularly into the milk and taken out quickly, will retain evidence of the fluid, but if water has been added the needle will be clear.

The Washington correspondent of the Springfield Republican writes: "The extreme character of the language used by some of the Senate leaders against the President in private conversation, would astonish the country if it was printed. An old Republican said not long ago, after speaking of the President at length, 'I should like to see him hung!' Of course he didn't really mean it, but it measured pretty accurately his feelings toward the President. And it is mainly a matter of patronage."

The Kansas City papers are complaining that the banks there are overruled with business which is a novel experience in these dull times. It seems that the four banks of that city have an aggregate capital of only $313,750, while the clearing last year amounted to $20,213,011.51. This is a big trade for banks with such limited capital to handle, and the Kansas City papers are right in saying that there is no other city in the country where a million dollars could be put into the banking business with such promising prospects.

The popular faith in arnica as a remedy has been shown by a French experimenter, Dr. Planat, not to be misplaced. He has used it largely as a local application in many cases of erysipelas, sore throat and especially boils with marked success. He says a few applications will arrest a boil in any stage, and attributes this effect to an influence upon the nerves which control the caliber of the blood vessels. He applies the arnica in the form of an ointment composed of ten grammes of the extract to twenty grammes of honey. The tincture internally seemed to exert a similar action, though less pronounced.

GENERAL BUTLER encountered a signal defeat in the House of Representatives Monday afternoon on his motion made last week, but not acted on, to suspend the rules and pass his great financial patent panacea bill directing the Secretary of the Treasury to reimburse the fractional currency notes, and also one and two dollar notes to the amount of one-sixth of the whole legal-tender notes outstanding. The House Banking and Currency Committee had acted on this bill favorably, and this fact was stated to the House by Mr. Ewing to influence votes in its favor. Nevertheless, on the roll call the motion was lost by a vote of 120 yeas to 124 nays.

The depressed and unremunerative condition of the cotton industry in England is declared to be almost hopeless. The Economist, a well known London journal, which had Mr. James Wilson for its founder, and the late Mr. Walter Bagshaw as its editor for many years reports, that taking the statistics of the whole country for the three years which expired in 1875, the number of spindles in England was 39,000,000, which counting the capital invested at thirty shillings per spindle, makes an outlay of $38,500,000. The home consumption has much decreased, but the falling off in the exports of cotton yarn and cotton goods had not been considerable in the last three years. In Lancashire the depression is largely felt, two-thirds of the mills paying no dividend, and being at a discount in the share lists.

The Detroit Post and Tribune, which has heretofore said nothing about the current charges against the Episcopal Bishop of Michigan, McCook, now publishes an editorial in which, after declaring that the situation has essentially changed, and the indications now are that the whole case will come within the sphere of legitimate discussion, says: "It is true that grave circumstances coming to the knowledge of official representatives of this Protestant Episcopal diocese forced them to the decision that the vacating of the Bishopric by its incumbent was demanded by the interests of the Church, and that the resignation of his office by the Bishop was due to this conviction on their part, and not to his own free will. It is not true that those circumstances have been correctly set forth in the gross narratives so widely published in no more than instances with revolting obscenity of language."

The Washington Star prints a very encouraging picture: "The Eastern States do not feel a material improvement yet in business, but 'out West' there are numerous signs of a return of prosperity. Good crops and good prices have put the farmers in condition to pay off debts and leave something over for the purchase of luxuries, such as they have denied themselves during the hard times. The price of Western lands is advancing under the new impulse and the more hopeful prospects, and at the same time a decided increase in emigration West is noticed. This is partly made of foreign arrivals and of emigrants from the Eastern States. The activity in Western railroad, mining and other stocks is indicative of the turn of the tide from the low water depression. The East must ultimately feel the benefit of the Western buoyancy and find a sale of its goods and manufactures."

The Danger of Democratic Ascendancy in this Country.

New York Tribune of 24th.

Secretary Sherman, it is said, has properly asserted that the restoration of the Democratic party to power is "the only danger that really threatens our public peace and safety." It is even said that Mr. Sherman cannot possibly believe this, and must be insincere in saying it. Patriotic and able Democrats are named, by way of proof that the country has nothing to fear from the advent of that party to power, and it is somewhat rashly asserted that "whenever the ascendancy of either party is actually and positively a menace to the public peace and safety, then the days of liberty are numbered." But Mr. Sherman, and his critics are palpably in the wrong. There was a time, not more than seventeen years ago, when the ascendancy of the Democratic party to the public peace and safety and an inevitable and quick dissolution, with resulting war, endless and merciless, between sundered sections.

Secretary Sherman wisely refuses to forget that time. In some degree the Democratic party has changed its constituent elements, but the same controlling spirit remains, entirely right in this matter, and it is ruled by the South, as it was before the war. In loose and popular phrase the South is said to be "reconstructed," but it is absolutely impossible to name the Southern statesmen who dare publicly to disavow the ideas for which the South was said to fight. Southern statesmen come back into the Union because they cannot help it, but not one of them ventures to denounce the objects of the war, or to say that on the part of the South it was wrongly fought, or to say that the South will not seek in peace, and by means of its political power, the very objects which it mistakenly sought to gain by war. Until the South has changed, why should its tool, the Democratic party, be thought to have changed in purpose or character.

Secretary Sherman need not go back further than the opening of the present session of Congress to prove that "the Democratic party threatens our peace and safety." The attempt to set aside the settlement of the Presidential question, and to reopen that most exciting and dangerous controversy, is made by Democratic only, has the support of not a single Republican, and obviously threatens the public peace and safety. The effort to rob creditors of the nation, by making its bonds and the interest thereon payable in depreciated money, unquestionably threatens the credit, and therefore the peace and safety of the country; and it is made mainly by Democrats, and would doubtless have succeeded if there had not been a Republican President. Four-fifths of the Democratic members of Congress are inflationists, and of their thirteenth schemes every one threatens the public peace and safety, and the success of each and all is to-day prevented by a Republican Senate or a Republican President.

More lies behind, as the vote of the House on Monday proves. Nobody can guess how many millions may be voted away, if the Democratic party gains the power. Seven millions on Monday—why? Because the South wanted three millions or more, and was willing to conspire with hungry members from other sections. Can anybody guess how many millions the Democratic party would have voted, if there had been a Senate to match? That there are Southern claims, for losses during the war, readers of the Tribune know. Does any one suppose that these claims would be forgotten or generally rejected, if the Democratic party had been elected? The Democratic party has threatened the public safety, because bankruptcy will come if they are granted. They threaten the public peace, because disorder, and resistance to law, if not actual anarchy, will follow whenever the Nation is actually crippled. Secretary Sherman told nothing but the truth. Democratic rule means now, as it did during the war, peril to the Union—peril to its credit, its prosperity, its peace and its safety.

Up River News.

Hancock County Independent.

Business prospects are at present better than they have been for some time. All the potteries and terra cotta works are working on a full scale, giving employment to the full number of hands. The foolish man leaveth off flannel now-a-days, and shortly he goeth to rest with his fathers, but the wise man clingeth to his, and sweateth and sweareth at the thought of his demise. The first candidate of the season made his appearance at McCoy's Station (O) on Wednesday of last week, in the person of Dr. Updegraff. The Dr. is a well known politician, having stumped Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia in the last campaign. He now offers himself as a candidate for Congress in this District. He is in every way competent and worthy to fill the position he seeks. He was escorted by Squire Berry and Robt. Wilkinson, two prominent Republican citizens of our township. Captain Lute Anderson returned with his kiel last week, after an absence of two months, to Nashville. They loaded her with "red hot" brick at the Clinton Works, and she started for Cincinnati, Saturday, with Captain W. T. Dawson at the helm.

The Rigold Kiss.

Celia Logan in N. Y. Dispatch.

The Rigold kiss is quite celebrated. In the last act of "King Henry V," he says to Katherine: "Oh, Kate, nice customs curtsy to great kings—therefore, patiently and yielding." He wheels her around till she faces him, then draws her close, presses his lips to hers, and keeps them there, until at last her head sinks upon his breast. Meanwhile an angel breathes peace and reigns throughout the front of the house, and when the suspense, engendered by the kiss is over, one simultaneous sigh of relief escapes the spectators. The Rigold kiss can not be too severely condemned. It, and Miss Nixon's reckless and somewhat breathless introduction on the boards a freedom in such matters which can not but have a vicious tendency among the young and inexperienced who visit theatres.

It has no demoralizing effect upon the artists themselves, for we never have given before, it is to them, merely a bit of "stage business," and nothing more.

Barnesville Slender Suit.

Barnesville Enterprise.

Mr. A. B. Fisher, of this place, has sued Mr. J. S. Parker, the grocer, for slander, laying the damages at $5,000. It appears that Fisher was indebted to Parker, who sent him a bill, which brought Fisher to the store, where a wordy quarrel ensued. Parker, it is alleged, afterwards placed this legend in his window: "A. B. Fisher, dead-beat." Mr. Fisher, deeming the little advertisement injurious to his character to the extent of $5,000, has brought suit to recover the above amount. The subject of lighting cities by electricity has long been puzzling inventors, but three San Francisco men now claim to have discovered a system, whereby that whole city may be thus illuminated. They have invented a battery, the plan and ingredients of which are kept a profound secret, and at a private exhibition given a few nights ago they proved that they had at least produced a steady and constant light for the illumination of small areas. The light produced by this system is brighter than that of the full moon, and, unlike the latter, it does not destroy colors. The inventors claim that they can light the entire city for about $100,000 per annum, which is one-third of the present cost of gas light.

BELLAMY—Miss Gerlie Harding, of

Wheeling, is visiting Miss Ella Heburn.

Mr. C. W. Price, of the Barnesville Enterprise, and Mr. C. M. Garner, of the St. Clairsville Gazette, were in town yesterday. The persons who were wounded yesterday at the Goblet Works disaster are getting along as well as could be expected. The doctors have now some hopes of Connor's recovery. We were in error about Sullivan having an arm broken. He was badly bruised but no bones broken. Mr. Gorbey, the Secretary, informs us that we made an error in saying that the wall was defective. Young Small will be buried this afternoon. We understand that the Goblet Company is paying all expenses for medical aid, and are also bearing Small's funeral expenses. A little son of R. R. Crouse, Janitor of the Fourth Ward school house, died Wednesday evening of diphtheria. He was buried at Rock Hill to-day at 10 o'clock. Eight car loads of horses and cattle arrived at the B. & O. stock yards Wednesday, and on Thursday 24 cars of stock.

Alternately Shaken and Scorching

By the paroxysms of chills and fever, the wretched sufferer, for whom quinine has been prescribed essays in vain to exterminate the dreadful disease with that hurtful palliative, which at best only mitigates the violence of the fit, and eventually proves highly injurious to the system. In order to effect a thorough cure of malarial fever, whether intermittent or remittent, or to render the system impregnable to its attacks, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters should be used daily. That this medicine is a searching catalyst of diseases generated by miasma, and a reliable safeguard against them, is a fact so widely recognized in this and other countries that to adduce evidence in support of it is unnecessary; but were it either essential or desirable to do so, it may well be supposed that from the testimony corroborative of its claims, which has been accumulating during the last twenty-five years and over, sufficient proofs might be gathered to convince the most inveterate skeptic.
